Look at this site, this is all stuff we need to say. Again, if I am getting low on hours, then just invest your time for a certain percentage. I think my idea and what I explained to you about what I need and your idea of what I actually need might be off.

I also know that I need to be more involved. I suffer from depression/anxiety a lot, especially in last year or so, so it's been really hard for me to be business oriented.

I really think you should take a chance on me, invest some of your time, I will then be accountable to make sure we both succeed. I'm think I suck right now doing this, because honestly I'm completely alone.

I also know your not into fashion dolls, but this market idea is going to being AMAZING. You can apply it also to anything. Instead of buying from unknown person, your buying from sellers you have learned to trust.

Great for sellers because with lower fees, they can build their brand within community. Marketplace on FB isn't trusted, but easy to start brand. ebay is trusted, but hard to start brand. I am combining the two!
